Top-Notch Accommodations & Facilities

Boise is an incredibly vibrant city, featuring more than 6,000 hotel rooms ranging from luxury towers to charming boutique inns. We also have a wide range of meeting facilities. Varied in size and style, over 100,000 total square feet of flexible meeting space/arena, historic train depot, professional sports arenas, a quaint Basque Block, and much more.

Urban Amenities without the Urban Hassles

Boise's lifestyle and climate attract restauranteurs, entrepreneurs and artists from around the world. For visitors, this means all the comforts and quality of a large city, but without the transportation tie-ups and other big-city hassles.

Popular group trips include river rafting adventures, skiing trips and golf days, punctuated with evenings at theaters and specialty restaurants. Boise has quite the story to tell. ADDING NEW 'MUST DO' EXPERIENCES

Boise is becoming a desirable destination with its burgeoning hotel scene and abundant meeting space. But even better, it's a fun, friendly city to visit in every season.

In the last few years the city has become known for its vibrant, clean and safe downtown with easy access to recreation, food, drink, and entertainment options. Whether you're looking to unwind after a day of meetings or you want to set up a memorable event, here are some of the latest attractions in Boise.

Park

Best venues for team building

- » Jack's Urban Meeting Place (JUMP): Having fun is serious business at JUMP, a community gathering place. Teams can explore the tractor museum and adult-sized playground (including a five-story slide) on their own, or schedule a JUMP experience with customized, two-hour, guided teambuilding excursions.
- » SUP in Boise: Idaho River Sports has kayaking, stand up paddleboard, and surfing lessons available for individuals and groups. Rent equipment, get instruction and head out into the beautiful Esther Simplot Park, Quinn's Pond & Boise Whitewater park.
- » Zip lines and ropes course: Just an hour north of Boise, Cascade Raft and Kayak offers a variety of team-building opportunities. Best of all, it's located on the banks of the scenic Payette River, making this a favorite summertime escape.
- » Bogus Basin Mountain Resort: Boise's own nonprofit ski resort has miles of hiking and biking trails, a mountain coaster ride and a recently-renovated lodge with indoor and outdoor gathering spaces. It's all less than 20 miles from downtown Boise.

Best new entertainment venues

- » Base Camp Pong & Axe: Axe throwing is the main event to try at this new local spot, but your group can also enjoy ping pong, food and local libations as well. If you've never thrown an axe, don't worry – staff is on hand to teach your team the basics.
- » Voicebox Karaoke: Whether you have singers in the group or are just really feeling bold after meetings, Voicebox Karaoke offers a unique setup with private suites, so you don't have to sing in front of a huge crowd.
- » Idaho Botanical Garden: After a day inside, enjoy the sunshine. Explore the lush, 15-acre gardens among Boise's foothills. Tours of domestic plants are available, as well as frequent concerts and specialty events in the spring, summer and fall.
- » Explore the Arts: Boise's arts scene includes concerts, theatre, ballet, opera, stand-up comedy and everything in between. Depending on the season, check for tickets to Boise Contemporary Theater, Idaho Shakespeare Festival, or LED Boise.

- » The Grove Plaza has been Boise's core for decades because it's rarely left unoccupied. In the summer the ever-popular (and free) Alive After 5 concert series always beckons meeting attendees on Wednesday evenings. If you've got a big group and want to be in the middle of it all, the Plaza is a great option.

Best new restaurants

- » Txikiteo: Basque culture is part of the fabric of Boise, and this restaurant offers a modern experience of Basque cuisine. Pintxos and wine are the go-to choices, but Txikiteo offers full menus for breakfast, lunch and dinner and sources ingredients locally.
- » The Lively: A unique dining experience that embraces small details throughout the menu and the restaurant interior. Eat, drink, and be lively!
- » The Wylder: The lunch and supper spot serves up slow batch pizza and craft cocktails in downtown Boise. The owners launched a second restaurant in the historic Hyde Park neighborhood — Certified Kitchen & Bakery. There they serve breakfast sandwiches, fresh baked goods and take-away meals. Both locations use a sourdough starter that is more than 50 years old for their culinary creations.

There's no shortage of new, exciting experiences here in Boise to help you unwind from a long day, dine in style or bond as a team.

A Room Around the Corner: NEW & RENOVATED HOTELS OFFER FRESH OPPORTUNITIES IN DOWNTOWN BOISE

PLACE

Boise is buzzing with new development—including enhancements to the growing tourism industry. In the past three years, the City of Trees has doubled the number of downtown hotels that are walking distance from the Boise Centre convention center. That translates to nearly 1,300 walkable hotel rooms. Along with these new hotels comes expanded meeting space options to suit a variety of event needs.

Hip, urban convenience in a familiar setting » Whether you rely on a particular hotel or prefer the familiarity of a national brand, Boise has several options. Boise's corporate hotels are largely brand new and well situated for all that downtown Boise has to offer.

Sleek & modern, the 132-room Hilton Garden Inn opened in downtown Boise in the summer of 2018, adding much-needed hotel space to the area. The hotel is part of the city's Pioneer Crossing development and features a restaurant as well as 4,000 square feet of meeting space. A complimentary shuttle provides transportation within a one-mile radius.

The Hyatt Place opened in downtown Boise during the spring 2017 at 11th and Bannock Streets. The new property includes 150 hotel rooms and 2,800 square feet of meeting space. The brand is well-known for accommodating large groups. In the warmer months, the property's outdoor pool is a convenient place to unwind.

In the heart of downtown, just a stone's throw from the Idaho State Capitol, the Residence Inn by Marriott City Center is a stylish 10-story, 185 room all-suite hotel that opened in 2017. It offers 4,700 square feet of meeting space, and the property also boasts a gorgeous rooftop patio with a fireplace for networking and mingling in the evenings.

Keep an eye out for the brand new Home2 Suites by Hilton, a seven-story hotel with 140 hotel rooms, which opened in the fall of 2020. It also features a large parking garage with hundreds of spots for guests.

Custom, boutique and unique spaces » If you and your group are looking for something more unique, there are a few premier choices.

The Inn at 500 Capitol opened in early 2017. It was among the first hotel openings that sparked a flurry of downtown development. This 109-room, four-diamond hotel is sure to impress guests with large, inviting rooms, cuisine from an award-winning chef and more than 2,000 square feet of unique, flexible meeting spaces.

Adjacent to the Boise Centre and Idaho Central Arena, the Grove Hotel with 250 rooms is a local gem in Boise. The property has been a fixture downtown for more than 20 years and recently underwent extensive renovations. Now, the Grove has a renovated lobby area complete with a bar that serves specialty coffee in the morning and morphs into a full-service bar midday. The Grove's new restaurant, Trillium, focuses on locally and regionally-sourced ingredients for its American-inspired menu.

Looking to the future, restoration of the historic Averil building (former site of the Blues Bouquet bar) has been proposed to make room for a new boutique hotel in downtown Boise. According to press reports, the Hotel Renegade is also slated for a 2022 groundbreaking in downtown Boise and will add approximately 130 rooms, a mix of traditional design with modern influenced charm. It will also include a restaurant, meeting space and a wellness center.

With its abundance of fresh spaces to stay and plenty of event venues for groups of all sizes, the Boise area is an excellent destination for meetings and conferences. Each property caters to a group's needs, ensuring there is a setting that meets your taste. Visit Boise.org to learn more and get started planning your next meeting.

Sustainable BOISE

CREATING A DESTINATION THAT WILL LAST

Energy efficiency is on the minds of Boiseans. According to a recent survey, some 75 percent of the city's residents consider sustainability a key value. The City of Boise has embraced this sentiment, making plans to enhance a destination in ways that will last far into the future without stripping away too many of the earth's resources. A directive from the city is to ensure all new buildings have a net-zero energy rating by 2030, and all existing buildings will reduce energy use 50 percent by 2030.

BIKE FRIENDLY

Downtown
Boise

Here is a closer look at how Boise is creating a more sustainable community for both locals and visitors.

The City of Boise

Geothermal Heating » Thanks to its geography, Boise has access to geothermally heated water that flows beneath the city. This is a valuable, natural source of energy to tap into to help heat homes and businesses. The Boise Centre, Boise City Hall and State Capitol Building all use geothermal energy as a primary source of heat. Other businesses that use geothermal include Jack's Urban Meeting Place (JUMP), the Treasure Valley YMCA & several buildings at Boise State University.

Citywide Transportation Action Plan » Downtown Boise is wonderfully walkable, pedestrian and bike-friendly. Now city planners are developing transportation strategies to make Boise a more mobile, healthy and sustainable metro area. With its transportation plan, the city wants to give residents options beyond their cars and to make the streets safe and suitable for multiple modes of transportation.

City Compost Program » In June 2017, Boise launched a new program to encourage residents to compost. The initiative has been incredibly successful. More than 70,000 residents participate and have produced nearly 40 million pounds of compostable materials. This has helped keep 41% of the city's total waste out of landfills. Local residents and businesses can buy excess compost from the city to use as well.

The Hospitality Industry

Meeting Spaces » Energy efficiency and environmental-friendliness have been longtime priorities at the Boise Centre, the city's largest convention space. Some of the key priorities for the venue include waste reduction and recycling, food donation and clean transportation. Through its efforts, Boise Centre has redirected 32,220 pounds of recyclables from local landfills and donated more than 3,000 pounds of food to the Boise Rescue Mission.

The Boise Centre's location also makes it easy for visitors to take advantage of green transportation. Valley Regional Transit's Main Street Station is beneath the Boise Centre, giving people the option to take a bus.

Restaurants » Several Boise dining establishments are leading the way in local sustainability. Located on bustling 8th Street, Bittercreek Alehouse are committed to local, farm-to-table ingredients. The innovative restaurants also have "vermicompost" bins (composting with worms in bins) in their basement to recycle food waste. The castings are then sold as garden fertilizer at the Boise Farmers Market when spring arrives.

The Grove Hotel's new restaurant, Trillium, is also prioritizing sustainability through its local, seasonal approach to menu sourcing. The restaurant ensures a smaller carbon footprint through partnerships with local producers such as Gaston's Bakery & Cloverleaf Creamery.

Hotels » The community's focus on sustainability extends to the hospitality sector. Hotel 43 has a partnership with nonprofit Clean the World, which repurposes used hotel soap, shampoo and conditioner.

Big-name properties like the Hyatt Place and the Residence Inn by Marriott, are implementing sustainability initiatives on a national scale for all properties, as well as in Boise. This includes reducing single-use plastics, cutting back on energy consumption, recycling and using energy efficient designs and lighting in the hotels.

Sustainability is important to visitors, local businesses, local government and Boise-area residents. As the city continues to evolve, building a more sustainable, eco-conscious environment is a major priority. Visit Boise.org to learn more and start planning your next visit.

Afterward, attendees can take in all the zoo has to offer, from lions and giraffes to red pandas and butterflies. Your group can even request a special animal presentation.

5. JUMP » There's nothing quite like JUMP, the multi-faceted space built to honor the founder of the J.R. Simplot Company. JUMP, which stands for Jack's Urban Meeting Place, started as a place to display J.R. Simplot's collection of old and rare tractors, but has now become something much more, with a mix of interactive attractions alongside indoor and outdoor gathering spaces.

6. The Basque Block » Boise has the highest concentration of Basque people per capita outside the Basque region of Spain and France. The Basque block honors an important part of the city's heritage and is a source for one-of-a-kind meeting venues. Meeting planners can have the block closed for their event, or consider options like the Basque Market, Beside Bardenay, an open space connected to Boise's Bardenay Restaurant & Distillery, and the historic Basque Center, a charming space that was built in 1949.

7. Wineries, Cideries & Craft Breweries » The Boise metro area has an abundance of local breweries, wineries and cideries. Create a unique experience where meetings are moved out of a board room and into a barrel room. Local wineries like Telaya Wine Co., Cinder and Coiled, to name a few, offer a variety of meeting spaces, depending on group size, catering, and can customize experiences and tours. from the city to use as well.

It takes time to plan and execute a memorable event, regardless of how intimate or grandiose. Rest assured that Boise has plenty of choices to match the style and feel you want to achieve while you are here. Visit Boise.org or talk to one of our experts to learn more and get started planning your next meeting.
